Monday, September 17
“The neurobiology of glaucoma”
David Calkins, PhD, FARVO
Vice-Chair & Director for Research, Vanderbilt Eye Institute
Denis M. O’Day Professor of Ophthalmology & Visual Sciences
Vanderbilt University School of Medicine
Host: Lisa Ostrin

Monday, October 15
“Atypical functional and structural changes in the retina with ocular blast injury”
Machelle Pardue, PhD
Professor, Coulter Department of Biomedical Engineering, Georgia Institute of Technology & Emory University School of Medicine
Host: Jason Porter

Monday, November 12
“Myopia mysteries”
Kate Gifford, PhD, FAAO
Clinical Optometrist, Gerry & Johnson Optometrists
Visiting Research Fellow, School of Optometry and Vision Science, Queensland University of Technology (QUT)
Host: Lisa Ostrin

Monday, January 14
“What you see isn’t always what you get: The importance of functional testing with adaptive optics”
Austin Roorda, PhD, FARVO
Professor, Optometry and Vision Science, School of Optometry, University of California, Berkeley
Host: Jason Porter

Monday, February 11
“Assessment, simulation and correction of binocular vision impairment”
Peter Bex, PhD
Professor, Department of Psychology
Northeastern University
Host: Daniel Coates

Tuesday, March 19
“Medicinal maggots and ocular surface disease: new uses for an ancient treatment”
Alison McDermott, PhD
Professor, Department of Applied Sciences
Northumbria University
Host: Rachel Redfern

Monday, April 5
“New perspectives on motion processing in the primate visual system”
Alexander Huk, PhD
Professor, Departments of Neuroscience & Psychology
University of Texas at Austin
Host: Scott Stevenson

For more information, contact Jason Porter at jporter@central.uh.edu